

QEII Foundation Donor Bill of Rights

Philanthropy is the desire to promote the welfare of others based on voluntary action for the common good.

The QEII Foundation's mission is to inspire generosity to advance health care at the QEII Health Sciences Centre. In doing so, the QEII Foundation regularly communicates with its donor community. To ensure you have full confidence in the Foundation, we declare all QEII Foundation donors have the following rights:

1. To be assured your donation will be used for the purpose for which it was given.
2. To know the identity of those serving in leadership positions within our organization and our Board of Trustees.
3. To have access to our organization's most recent financial statements.
4. The ability to ask questions when making a donation and to receive prompt, truthful and forthright answers including advice on efficient giving methods.
5. To expect a fair and proper balance between your interests and the objectives of the QEII Foundation.
6. To receive appropriate acknowledgement and recognition, or the option of remaining anonymous.
7. To have the opportunity to have your name removed from correspondence, if so desired.
8. To expect relationships with our staff or volunteers will be professional at all times and that you are clear on their role with our organization.
9. To know our staff and board exercise prudent judgement in its stewardship responsibilities.
10. To receive updates about the outcomes and impacts achieved at the QEII Health Sciences Centre as a result of donor generosity.
11. To have your privacy respected and protected. The QEII Foundation does not rent, sell or trade your donor information.
